

Banking Regulation

What is the issue?

\n\n

\n

- The recent banking scams have led to considerable outrage, as it involves issues of propriety and governance.

\n

- It is essential to make the necessary corrections and ensure credibility to the system.

\n

\n\n

Why is the current situation different?

\n\n

\n

- For long, the public sector banks had been a point of concern.

\n

- The mounting NPAs and governance issues came to light.

\n

- It led to many calling for privatisation of the PSBs.

\n

- But the irony at present is that the concern has now shifted to private banks.

\n

- The banking scams have brought to focus the lack of transparency in the functioning of banks.

\n

- It has also highlighted the opaqueness of audit and inspection practices.

\n

\n\n

What are the concerns and remedies?

\n\n

\n

- Government - The shortfalls involve the government, central bank, banks and other stakeholders.

\n

- There is now a blame game on each other.

\n

\n\n

\n

- It is essential to revisit systems, laws and practices and update them.
- \n
- The allocation of responsibility for identifying and ensuring remedial action needs to be delineated.
- \n
- Banks - Who is to uphold the moral responsibility in a private bank is undefined.
- \n
- In most cases, it is the CEO, or executive Board members or the non-executive Board members.
- \n
- The issue of conflict of interest with respect to these positions should be addressed.
- \n
- Disclosure of financial dealings of the relatives of them, if any, in the Annual Report or the bank's web site could be an option.
- \n
- Banks' performance - The central bank or the government have no say in the salary package of a private company.
- \n
- On the other hand, there are no penalties for the government officials' non-performance and their tenures are safe.
- \n
- So, the regulators should fix or approve pay packages of the regulated to hold them responsible.
- \n
- CEO tenure - In PSBs, CEOs have short terms as they get their positions closer to retirement.
- \n
- Whereas, in private banks they begin at an early age and their tenure is always open to debate.
- \n
- Such extended periods lead to creation of power centres.
- \n
- It affects the grooming of second rung leaders.
- \n
- The CEO tenure should be given due attention as it has given rise to controversies in recent times.
- \n
- Regulation - The responsibility of the Boards should be clear on issues of governance.

\n

- Any deviance from regulation or conflict of interest should be discussed at this level.

\n

- The presence of a nominee director of the regulator on the Board is essential.

\n

- S/he is the 'ear of the public' and ensures that all compliances are in order.

\n

- When audit reports are carried out, the lacunae or important findings should be made public, as it influences their decision.

\n

- This is one way of ensuring that banks become complaint.

\n

- Review - Any deficiencies in compliance should be reviewed within a specified period of time.

\n

- It should be highlighted to the public so that it puts pressure on the bank to perform.

\n

- The overall banking regulatory framework needs strengthening.

\n

- It should be reviewed every 2 years based on the banks' response and be revisited periodically.
