

Draft “New e-Commerce Policy”

What is the issue?

\n\n

\n

- Inter-ministerial task force constituted to evolve a “new e-commerce policy” has submitted its report to the government.

\n

- The policy will seek to define e-commerce, strengthen FDI laws in the sector, address regulatory and competition issues and customer concerns.

\n

\n\n

What are the expected tenets of the policy?

\n\n

\n

- Overall - The policy will seek to define e-commerce, strengthen FDI laws in the sector, address regulatory and competition issues.

\n

- It will also focus on consumer interests, including data protection and privacy.

\n

- Data privacy - The task force has recommended the local storage of data generated by users in India from various sources.

\n

- Data sources include e-commerce platforms, social media and search engines.

\n

- The policy is likely to tow a nuanced approach on data localisation in order to balance the free flow of businesses with privacy concerns.

\n

- Structures - Development of a suitable framework for sharing the data within the country has also been recommended.

\n

- An online grievance redressal mechanism is also on the cards and division of powers between the Centre and States is being worked out.

\n

- Further, a single central e-com regulator is also likely to be established on the lines of the Telecom Regulator TRAI.

\n

- Competition - The draft policy has recommends tightening the scrutiny of mergers & acquisitions in the sector.

\n

- Further, it also seeks to ensure fairness in the market place and prevent predatory pricing by imbibing aspects of competition principles.

\n

\n\n

How does the future look?

\n\n

\n

- India's e-commerce market, currently valued at about $ 27 billion, is one of the fastest growing in the world.

\n

- A comprehensive e-commerce policy would encourage further investments in the sector that has immense potential for growth.

\n

- A clear policy framework would also help in taking a well-informed stand on issues concerning e-commerce at global forums.

\n

- Notably, India is under immense international pressure to start negotiations for liberalising the Indian e-commerce sector.
