

India and ICAN

What is the issue?

\n\n

\n

- ICAN was awarded the 2017 Nobel Peace Prize for its efforts on nuclear prohibition.
- India denounced from voting in favour of a resolution brought in by ICAN, in this regard.
- This gains significance in the larger context of India's place in nuclear non-proliferation.

What is ICAN?

\n\n

\n

- The International Campaign to Abolish Nuclear Weapons was launched in 2007.
- It is a global civil society coalition which constitutes 468 partner organizations from around 100 countries.
- The campaign helped bring about the Treaty on the Prohibition of Nuclear Weapons.
- It works primarily to promote adherence to and full implementation of this treaty.
- It called upon nuclear-armed states to initiate negotiations to gradual elimination of the world's 15,000 nuclear weapons.
- Its uniqueness is that it pays attention to the humanitarian threat posed by nuclear weapons.

What was its resolution?

\n\n

- \n
 - Earlier this year, ICAN came up with an international treaty that was negotiated and concluded at the United Nations.
 - \n
 - The treaty will come into effect only when 50 nations have ratified it; so far, only a handful have done so.
 - \n
 - When it comes into force, it will be binding only on those who have ratified it.
 - \n
 - Notably, none of the nine nuclear powers, including India and Pakistan, associated themselves with the treaty or the related negotiations at the UN.
 - \n
 - Many of them view the possession of nuclear weapons as deterrents to war.
 - \n
 - Officially, India, holds up its commitment to a nuclear weapons-free world.
 - \n
 - However, it stresses that there must be a “universal, non-discriminatory and verifiable nuclear disarmament”.
 - \n
 - It stayed away from the treaty citing the Conference of Disarmament as the right forum to negotiate a “step-by-step process” to achieve a nuclear weapons-free world.
 - \n

\n\n

What does India's stance imply?

\n\n

- \n
 - If India had joined the other member states in voting for the resolution, it would have signalled itself as a major force for peace.
 - \n
 - By not doing so, India has alienated itself from a majority of the international community sizeably from the non-aligned nations.
 - \n
 - India has denied the opportunity of being the only Nuclear Weapon Power to continue with the record of championing for peace cause.
 - \n
 - This has rendered meaningless India's adherence over the past to various nuclear disarmament efforts.

\n

- Moreover, seeking a resolution through Conference on Disarmament (CD) also seems almost unachievable.

\n

\n\n

Quick Fact

\n\n

Conference on Disarmament (CD)

\n\n

\n

- CD is a forum established in 1979 by the international community to negotiate multilateral arms control and disarmament agreements.
- It is a forum used by its member states (around 65), to negotiate the Biological Weapons Convention and the Chemical Weapons Convention.
- While the conference is not formally a UN organization, it is linked to it through a personal representative of the United Nations Secretary-General.
- Resolutions adopted by the UN General Assembly often request the conference to consider specific disarmament matters and in turn, the conference annually reports its activities to the Assembly.
- The CD works by consensus, and nuclear powers, including India and Pakistan, assemble there mainly to block each other.
