What is the tone of the summit?

 $n$

\n

• The Secretary of State highlighted the growing mutual strategic priorities between the two big democracies.

۱n

• He also notably criticised China's actions in the Indo-Pacific and the "Belt and Road Initiative" - BRI.

\n

 \bullet Areas of convergences like connectivity, trade & economics and counterterrorism cooperation is expected to be the focus. \n

\n

• While sentiments look positive for India, it would be wise to wait for a clear policy from the US before celebrating.

What are India's main concerns?

 $n\n$

\n

- Trump has been very ambiguous in his foreign policy thus far.
- The contradiction is particularly significant for India, as Trump's South Aisa doctrine is particularly very unclear.
- Pakistan Despite severely censoring Pakistan for supporting terrorism,

U.S. rejoined the Pakistani-led Quadrilateral Coordination Group along with Afghanistan and China.

\n

- Also, Washington has not condemned the Pakistan government's decision to drop terrorism charges against LeT Chief Hafiz Saeed.
- Iran U.S. is expected to increase sanctions on Iran, as it has recently blamed it for supporting terrorism.
- This might make trading with Iran very hard due to various constrains like banking.

\n

- Lack of trade may hence reduce Iran's interest in Chabahar port, thereby impacting India's connectivity plans for Afghanistan and Central Asia.
- \bullet Also, India would be under pressure to reduce oil imports from Iran and give up future investment plans in Iran. $$

What else does the trip hold?

 $n\n$

۱n

- Delhi will host Afghan President Ashraf Ghani on the same day that Mr.
 Tillerson arrives which would be perceived as trilateral.
- As Mr. Tillerson will travel to Delhi from Islamabad, he will also carry the Pakistan perspective which calls for more caution.
- \bullet In the absence of a clearer path for the US, India should stay vigilant from being drawn into the larger strategic designs. $\mbox{\sc h}$
