

India's focus on Football

What is the issue?

\n\n

\n

- India recently hosted the U-17 World Cup, the first FIFA.

\n

- This experience shows that India must build on it with focus on grassroots.

What is the significance of U-17 World cup?

\n\n

\n

- This U-17 World Cup has proved to be a real eye-opener, the standard and quality have been very high up until now.

\n

- It's an educating, enriching experience for everyone related to Indian football.

\n

- Awesome individual skills have combined with superb tactical sense and fantastic game management.

\n

- India's U-17 players got the sort of exposure and opportunity that they would not otherwise have.

\n

- The footballers captured the imagination of the public, with players like goalkeeper becoming household names.

\n

- India embraced the tournament wholeheartedly, with the turnout over the three weeks shattering previous attendance records for a FIFA youth tournament.

\n

- Over 1.3 million people thronged the stadiums, with the crowds in football-crazy Kolkata in particular a sight to behold during the finals.

\n

What are the areas India need to plan on football?

\n\n

\n

- India already started a national U-15 league two years ago and a U-13 league is scheduled to begin soon.

\n

\n\n

\n

- The 5-12 age group must now be the focus, with the involvement of local clubs.

\n

- The All India Football Federation has already expressed a desire to host the FIFA U-20 World Cup in 2019.

\n

- Having competently staged a global event, it is more important now to focus on the grassroots.

\n

- Youth development in Indian football has hitherto been non-existent, except in a few, devoted academies.

\n

- More organised, competitive football, starting from the youngest of age groups, is vital.

\n

- Improvement in infrastructure, with new training grounds built and existing stadiums upgraded, should ensure a longer legacy for football in the country.
