What are the problems in present set-up?

 $n\n$

\n

• With increasing demand for water, inter-state river water disputes are on the rise.

۱n

- The present Inter State River Water Dispute Act, 1956 that provides the legal framework to address such disputes has many drawbacks.
- Under the present Act, a separate Tribunal has to be established for each dispute.

\n

- There are eight inter-state water dispute tribunals, including the Ravi and Beas Waters Tribunal and Krishna River Water Dispute Tribunal.
- Currently there is no time limit for adjudication or publication of reports.
- Only three of the eight tribunals have actually given awards accepted by the states.

\n

- Tribunals like those on the Cauvery and Ravi Beas have been in existence for over 26 and 30 years respectively without any award.
- \bullet There is no upper age limit for the chairman or the members.

What are the proposals of the new bill?

\n

- \bullet The bill proposes a single standing tribunal with multiple benches instead of multiple tribunals that exist at present. $\mbox{\sc h}$
- \bullet The total time period for adjudication of dispute has been fixed at maximum of 4.5 years.
- The decision of the Tribunal shall be final and binding.
- \bullet There is no requirement of publication in the official gazette $\ensuremath{^{\backslash n}}$
- \bullet As per the proposed bill, the Tribunal shall have one chairperson, one vice-chairperson and not more than six other members. \n
- It limits the tenure of the chairperson to five years or till they attain the age of 70, whichever is earlier.
- The bill also proposes to introduce mechanisms to resolve disputes amicably by negotiations through a Dispute Resolution Committee (DRC) before a dispute is referred to the tribunal
- \bullet DRC to be established by the central government consisting of experts. $\ensuremath{^{\backslash n}}$
- It also provides for a transparent data collection system at the national level for each river basin.
- It also calls for the appointment of assessors to provide technical support to the tribunal.
- \bullet An agency to maintain data-bank and information system is to be authorized by central government. $\mbox{\sc h}$
