

Involving States in Foreign Policy

What is the issue?

 $n\n$

\n

- The ruler of Sharjah, a UAE city, recently made his visit to Kerala.
- On request by the Kerala CM, he agreed to release 149 Indian prisoners from Sharjah jails.

\n

• This significant outcome has highlighted the need for an increased role of states in India's foreign policy.

What is Paradiplomacy?

 $n$

\n

• Paradiplomacy is international relations conducted by subnational on their own

\n

• It outlines a foreign policy role for local and regional governments within a democratic federal system.

\n

• Economic paradiplomacy related to trade and investment in particular has become an institutionalized practice across the world.

\n

- Most of these states are successful at FDI promotion.
- In India, traditionally foreign affairs are in the exclusive domain of the Union government.

\n

 $\bullet$  However, in recent times "competitive federalism" is being increasingly stressed, particularly in matters of foreign affairs. \n

 $n\n$

In past, the larger interests of India on the global scene were sacrificed for the cause of the states concerned. e.g.

 $n\n$

\n

- West Bengal CM stopped then PM Manmohan Singh from signing Teesta water sharing agreement with Bangladesh.
- $\bullet$  Kerala insisted on trying and punishing in India, the Italian marines who killed two fishermen, leading to a rift in India's relations with the EU.  $\ensuremath{\backslash} n$
- Tamil Nadu had insisted that India should support the U.S. resolution against Sri Lanka in the UNHRC.
- Also TN, for the Tamil minority's cause, stopped the PM from attending Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting (CHOGM) in Sri Lanka.

What are the recent changes made?

 $n\n$

\n

- The Ministry of External Affairs now has a new States division.
- $\bullet$  This keeps in touch with the states and assists them in their ties with countries in which they have a special interest.  $\mbox{\sc h}$
- $\bullet$  The special linkage could be on account of proximity or the presence of diaspora from that state.  $\mbox{\sc h}$
- Besides, IFS officers have been asked to choose a State each to understand its special requirements and to advise them.
- In this emerging scenario, the diplomats are expected to bring their regional expertise to take the correct decisions on neighbours.

 $n\n$

What lies ahead?

 $n\n$

\n

• There is a need for a new structure in MEA in which the states are fully represented.

\n

- Also, Ministry of External Affairs should have offices in key states.
- $\bullet$  Think tanks should be established in states to facilitate policy options and to provide inputs to the states and the Centre.  $\$
- $\bullet$  States should also be encouraged to secure best deals for themselves within the overall policy of the Central government.  $\$
