

Migrant Caravan - Central American Migration

Why in news?

 $n\n$

A trail of migrants has been moving northwards from Honduras and Guatemala, towards Mexico and the U.S., in the recent days.

 $n\n$

Is this the first time?

 $n\n$

\n

 Migration of Central Americans to Mexico and the US has taken place for decades.

\n

• They are mostly economic migrants seeking escape from poverty in places like Honduras.

۱n

• Otherwise, they are people fleeing persecution, trafficking or gang violence in the region.

\n

 $\bullet$  Earlier this year, a caravan from Honduras had reached the Mexico-US border travelling 3,500 km.

\n

• It was organised by a rights group called Pueblo Sin Fronteras (people without borders).

Why is the current one unique?

 $n\n$

\n

• In previous such caravans (a group travelling together), members numbered in the hundreds and dissipated along the way or upon reaching the border.

\n

 However, a migrant caravan of such a scale and organised nature, as the current one, is relatively new.

۱n

• It originally numbered fewer than 200 people, grew to 1,000 by the time it had crossed into Guatemala.

\n

- $\bullet$  It is now estimated to have reached more than 7,000 migrants. \n
- The caravan was formed in San Pedro Sula in Honduras, known for high levels of violence.

\n

• It has also gathered momentum from media attention and support from advocacy groups.

\n

 $\bullet$  But so far, no group has claimed responsibility for organising it.  $\ensuremath{\backslash n}$

What is the response?

 $n\n$

\n

- Americans are and will probably always be a nation of immigrants.
- As President, Barack Obama took a hard line on undocumented worker deportations.

\n

- But he took a moderate stance when it came to delaying the deportation of childhood arrivals, and policed borders with a relatively light touch.
- Contrarily, Trump has made every effort to deliver on his radical campaign promise to ban Muslims from entering the U.S.
- $\bullet$  The recent "migrant caravan" had led to warnings from Trump.  $\ensuremath{\backslash n}$
- $\bullet$  He had alerted border authorities about a "national emergency".  $\ensuremath{\backslash n}$
- He has also warned of criminals crossing over, economic dislocation and job loss.

\n

• It was also said that the US would begin curtailing aid to Honduras, Guatemala and El Salvador.

\n

 $n\n$

\n

- Guatemalan President Jimmy Morales had dismissed Trump's threats, and rejected constraints placed on foreign aid.
- $\bullet$  The Mexican government deployed about 700 National Police officers to the border and issued warnings to the caravan's participants.  $\$

 $n\n$

What next?

 $n\n$

\n

- The Trump administration is looking into an array of new policies that it hopes will deter Central Americans from such trips.
- $\bullet$  These range from a new form of the practice of family separation to stricter requirements on asylum.  $\ensuremath{\backslash} n$
