

Open camps for Sterilisation

Why in news?

 $n\n$

\n

- Over 27 months after 13 women died and 65 took ill at a State-run mass sterilisation camp in Chhattisgarh.
- Following this, the State government has now discontinued all sterilisation services.

What was the recent move?

 $n\n$

\n

- Open camps were discontinued.
- The doctor who performed the surgeries has been terminated and representatives of the pharmaceutical company which supplied the medicines are in jail.
- \bullet These moves are taken as per the recommendations of a judicial commission headed by retired district judge Anita Jha $\ensuremath{^{\backslash n}}$

 $n\n$

What is the effect of it?

 $n\n$

\n

- \bullet Health facilities, including district hospitals have also stopped sterilisations. $\ensuremath{\backslash} n$
- Instead of providing quality sterilisation services in the aftermath of so many deaths, the government has responded by discontinuing the services.
- As a result of discontinuing them, women have turned to private clinics for family planning.

۱n

• It costs around Rs. 8,000- 10,000.

\n

• Those who couldn't afford are required to go to neighbouring Jharkhand and Madhya Pradesh.

۱'n

• Tribal areas have suffered the most.

\n

 Since the discontinuation of open camps, sterilisation rates in Chhattisgarh for both men and women have dropped drastically.

What should be done?

 $n\n$

\n

• It has been a long-standing demand of the health movement in India that open camps be discontinued.

\n

 However, they have to be replaced by adequate facilities at CHCs and district hospitals.

\n

• It needs to be accompanied by awareness on male contraceptive methods such as condom use and vasectomy.

\n

• Family planning is equally a men's issue.

\n

 \bullet But currently there is no stress or campaign on male contraception.

۱n

• The government does not persuade men into sterilisation the way it does for women.

\n

• The tragedy in Chhattisgarh was a wakeup call.

\n

• It showed that there is high demand, especially among women, despite bad quality services.

\n

• Therefore government should respond by providing quality services to men and women, rather than withdrawing the existing services.
