

Rising Gold Imports

What is the issue?

 $n\n$

\n

• India's gold imports in the first four months of this fiscal have doubled in value from the year-ago period.

\n

• This has contributed to a threefold expansion in the merchandise trade deficit.

\n

• Given the role of gold imports in trade imbalances, it calls for deeper analysis and vigilance.

\n

 $n\n$

What are the reasons?

 $n\n$

۱n

• Earlier in the year, fears of high tariffs under GST led to the gold trade stockpiling material.

\n

 Later, gold imports spiked as a result of a tariff loophole that allowed zeroduty imports from South Korea.

\n

• Pre-GST, the government curbed certain previously waived custom duties (under free trade pacts such as with South Korea) by a countervailing duty (CVD).

\n

- $\bullet$  Post- GST, as CVD got subsumed by it, gold imports from these regimes suddenly turned cheaper, resulting this route being used for round-tripping. \n
- $\bullet$  Both these onetime and existing structural factors have contributed to the recent surge in gold imports.  $\mbox{\sc have}$

What is the way forward?

 $n$

\n

- To address round-tripping, centre should consider measures such as a safeguard duty or minimum value-addition norms for exports.
- Policy intervention is essential to curb opportunistic imports of gold.
- However, Centre should refrain from hasty measures to suppress genuine consumption demand for gold.
- This is because, unlike in the past, demand for gold is likely to be more consumption oriented than an investment one.
- Also, given the formalisation of the jewellery industry after demonetisation and GST, only a business-as-usual approach can work in favour of the economy at present.
