\n

 At present, the Election Commission of India (ECI) is a three-member body, with one Chief Election Commissioner (CEC) and two Election Commissioners (EC).

۱n

- Under Article 324(2) of the Constitution of India, the President of India is empowered to appoint the CEC and the ECs.
- Article 324(2) also empowers the President of India to fix from time to time the number of Election Commissioners other than the CEC.
- They draw salaries and allowances at par with those of the Judges of the Supreme Court of India.
- The CEC or an EC holds office for a term of six years from the date on which he assumes his office or until he attains the age of 65 years before the expiry of six years term.
- If the CEC and other ECs differ in opinion on any matter, such matter shall be decided by according to the opinion of the majority.

What did the supreme court say?

 $n\n$

\n

• The Supreme Court warned the central government that it must make a law on the appointment of election commissioners or face an intervention by the judiciary.

\n

- At present the PM with the aid and advice of the council of ministers makes the appointment as per the transaction of business rules.
- The rules only assign responsibility to start the process but are silent on what should be the qualification of a candidate.
- Thus, in the absence of a law, the government has a free hand in selecting officials as members of the three-member poll body.
- The SC has said that the Election Commissioners selection has to be made in the most transparent manner.
- The court has even remarked that the Parliament was in "breach" of its duty.
- \bullet Thus, norms similar to the ones on appointing a CBI director are required to meet the constitutional mandate. \n
