

Violence in Maharashtra - Caste and Nationalism

What is the issue?

\n\n

\n

- There was a caste conflict in Bhima Koregaon and Wadhu Budruk in Maharashtra recently.

\n

- It is indicative of the larger issues of caste oppression and sub-nationalism.

\n

\n\n

What happened at Bhima Koregaon?

\n\n

\n

- The Battle - Bhima Koregaon is a tiny village in Pune.

\n

- A battle in Koregaon took place between British troops and Marathas (Peshwa Bajirao II) on January 1, 1818 and the English won.

\n

- Significance - The English troops constituted a sizeable number of Mahars, a dalit community in the region.

\n

- The outcome of the battle is seen as a victory of the dalits against the injustices perpetuated by the Brahminical Peshwas.

\n

- Vijay Sthamb - The East India Company erected the Vijay Sthamb (victory pillar) in memory of the battle and it includes the names of the Mahar soldiers.

\n

- Dr B R Ambedkar had also visited it repeatedly and had emphasized the Mahars's defeat of the Peshwas.

\n

- In the following years, thousands have been gathering in Bhima Koregaon on January 1 to pay homage.

\n

- Current conflict - The 200th anniversary of the Bhima-Koregaon battle was commemorated recently.

\n

- Dalits increasingly regard the pillar as a symbol of renewed political aspiration.

\n

- The denunciation of the Peshwas is being related with Mahars' social and political marginalisation in contemporary times.

\n

- This is driving the Hindutva forces to doubt the conspicuous politicisation of Dalits.

\n

- The resulted in the clash and violence during the anniversary and led to the death of one.

\n

\n\n

What happened at Wadhu Budruk?

\n\n

\n

- History - Wadhu Budruk is a village near Bhima Koregaon, is where Sambhaji, the eldest son of Shivaji, was cremated.

\n

- As the legend goes, killed by the Mughals in 1689, Sambhaji's body was mutilated and thrown into a river by Aurangzeb.

\n

- It was Govind Mahar, a Dalit, who then gathered the body parts and arranged for the last rites.

\n

- Sambhaji's memorial was said to have been erected by the Mahars of that village.

\n

- Consequently, Govind Mahar's tomb was also erected in the village after his death.

\n

- Current conflict - Recently, Marathas, refused to acknowledge the role played by the Mahars in the last rites of Sambhaji.

\n

- They also objected to a sign at the site that recounted the story and complaints were filed with the police by both sides.

\n

- Notably, the violent clashes in Bhima Koregaon were an extension of the conflict in Wadhu Budruk.

\n

\n\n

What are the larger implications?

\n\n

- \n
 - Both the conflicts indicate an effort to situate Maratha history within the Hindutva framework.
- \n
 - Dalits - Being the 200th anniversary, the gathering in Bhima Koregaon was larger than usual and a big public conference was also organised.
- \n
 - The agenda was evidently against Hindutva politics.
- \n
 - Notably, Hindutva politics is increasingly being projected as the neo-peshwai (new Peshwas).
- \n
 - Hindutva - The new political articulation of the Dalits by equating Hindutva with the Peshwai has made the right-wing forces concerned.
- \n
 - Certainly, some of the Hindutva organisations are polarising the political landscape on religious and caste lines.
- \n
 - This is particularly to weaken the Ambedkarite Dalits who are seen as impediments to ensuring a Hindutva regime.
- \n
 - Nationalism - The agitation underscores the latent sub-nationalistic impulses currently active in Indian society.
- \n
 - In a way, this is a struggle between two nationalisms - religion-based versus caste-based.

\n\n

\n\n

Source: The Hindu, The Indian Express

\n