

War Crimes and ICC

Why in news?

The Congolese warlord Bosco Ntaganda was recently pronounced guilty of war crimes and crimes against humanity (CAH) by the International Criminal Court (ICC).

What is the story behind?

- These convictions are related to the 2002-03 ethnic conflict in the Democratic Republic of Congo (DRC).
- After a 2006 indictment by the Hague court, it took seven more years for him to surrender and months more before the trial could start.
- The conviction follows the ICC's 2012 sentencing of Thomas Lubanga, the first to be pronounced guilty pertaining to atrocities in the Congo.

What are some other recent cases?

- In 2014, the ICC charged the Kenyan President of crimes against humanity, relating to the death of hundreds in the 2007 post-election ethnic violence.
- This ruling convicted the former Vice President of DRC in 2016 and handed an 18-year sentence.
- In 2019, former President of Ivory Coast was acquitted of crimes against humanity.

What are the challenges for ICC?

- Many African countries feel that they are being selectively targeted.
- The ICC faces a strong resistance to prosecute the war crimes committed in Iraq and Afghanistan.
- Some countries like Burundi, the Philippines are quitting the ICC.
- The surge of nationalism around the world is a challenge to enforce accountability transcending domestic and regional borders.
- The refusal of major states to bring themselves under the court's jurisdiction has dampened the hope to ensure that serious atrocities committed by elected representatives do not go unpunished.
