

11/2020

① The outcomes of India's white revolution must be made sustainable for the overall development of India's dairy sector. Comment (200 words).

Indian government has launched "Operation Flood" through National Dairy Development Board (NDDB) under the leadership of Verghese Kurian. The key concept of the White Revolution is expanding network of cooperative societies throughout the nation.

Through cooperative societies it was more feasible to procure fresh milk from farmers directly. It also paved the way for financial credit system among farmers. It made India to become 'largest milk producer in world'. 22% milk production of world contributed from India by 2018.

But in terms of international trade India's milk and milk products just stands at 1%. So it's time to extend white revolution of milk to overall dairy sector.

Advantages of extending white revolution to all dairy development:

Through cooperative societies, not only direct buying, it also gives farmers stable financial security. It encourages them to organised animal rearing.

Despite of having around 75 million of dairy farms