A nuanced Slum policy, rather than a one-size-fits-all approach, would help in the welfare of Slum dwellers. Critically Analyse.

As far as history of Slum dwellers and their behaviours are concerned, The Slum dwellers have inherited tendency to remain at their places and are reluctant to move to other places. The migrants often get stuck in cycles of debt and Socio-economic Stagnation. Present Slum policy focuses only on housing, development of multi-storey complexes and fails to focus on Socio-economic distress on Slums.

At present there is a need to introduce multi-dimensional, multi-focused and holistic approach not only with physical aspects but also the functional aspect like psychological, Social, economical, domestic and Community aspect.

Such an approach will have three main players municipality, Private players and NGOs

1) NGO intervention to address functional aspects

2) Low cost house for slum dwellers

3) Morden high rise residents and commercial malls.

The Municipality to address functional aspect like Skill upgradation for Income generation, quality primary & secondary education.

A policy in this regard will get the Slum dwellers a quality of life, private players to sell residential apartments and governments the property tax.
