

The policy priority with respect to pop, need to focus on augmentation of quality of life laborate:

Introduction:

The policy priority should focus on increasing the quality of life of people rather than controlling population. Because population control will happen automatically without the government intervention if government provides education, ~~skills~~ ^{to women} etc which will automatically control population. Now the main aim of the government should be to augment the quality of people and to reap the demographic dividend.

Our total fertility rate is (2.0) which is less than that of the replacement level ratio which is (2.1) government policy should now have to give more focus on the increasing the quality of life of people through giving better scientific education, providing more employment, bring policy to support the old age people... etc. government policy

Should also made to increase the quality of health of people. In india many women Anemic about 58%. of women are anemic accord to NHFS report. Now it is the time for the government to make policy which should focus on augmentation of quality of life of people.

Now we are in the stage of demographic dividend it will going to be continue till 2045, in order to reap the demographic dividend, government policy should prioritize mostly on increasing quality of life of the people.

By increasing / focusing more on policy related to education will bring new innovations and skills which lead to increase in productivity hence increase in GDP. Health related policy will also bring more healthy productive persons, because without health nothing is possible, after some years there all youth will become old, so government should plan to enhance the quality of life of old people also. Hence, it's now time for government to make policy that focus on augmentation of quality of life of people.